The Recent Forgery.

To the Editor of the New York Hebald:—
I beg you to correct an error which appeared in your paper of yesterday morning. You state that Higgins'notes, with the forged endorsement Lambert Suydam, were discounted by me You have been missinformed with regard to this matter. I never discounted the notes as stated, but on the 13th June last I loaned to Mr. Warner, upon them, as collateral, $5000, which was returned to me on the 18th ult., with 5 days interest, $4 86; and on the 20th June last I loaned upon the same security, $4000—returned to me 30th ult, with 10 days interest, $7 77. Having, however, perfect confidence in the endorsement of Mr. Suydam, which I supposed was genuine, I told Mr. Warner that I would discount the paper at 7 per cent, but Mr. W. having discovered that the endorsement was forged, honorably did not bring them to me.—You will oblige me by making public the above statement.

Very respectfully, yours,

(Signed)

neral Obsequies to Gen. Jackson, &c. The long arm of the President has at length reach Master, Colonel Plume, has been removed to give Morris Canal some years since, having been an agent upon these works: Thus has Colonel Plume, who has always resided among us, and an officer in the late war, been displaced without cause ormotive, and I am free to assert that no act of the in the late war, been displaced without cause ormotive, and I am free to assert that no act of the President could have given more general dissatis faction to his party. He received his appointment from Mr. Tyler, it is true, but with the approbation of the whole delegation in Congress from this State, which were elected by democrats. In this matter the President must have been illy advised, and gross frauds practised upon him from some quarter. The appointment, although made by Mr. Tyler, was highly approved by both parties, and the leaders of the democratic party took steps to prevent the removal, but it was of no avail. This step has caused a general feeling of indignation among our sober reflecting citizens. Had it been necessary to make this change in our Post Office, other selections might have been made from the democratic ranks far more acceptable, and far more competent. But the wishes of the community were not consulted, and we have palmed upon us a man who has no claims as a citizen, neither is he capable of discharging the duties of the office. He, however, is now receiving the aid and advice of an old whig postmaster, who may teach him a few lessons if he is an apt scholar.

We hope for the best, but very much fear the selection is a decidedly bad one, and will prove so, Our funeral ceremonies of the death of General Jackson to-day was a brilliant affair, the procession only equalled by that of General Harrison. Our military companies generally paraded, and made a most beautiful display.

Should an opportunity present itself, we should be most happy to receive a visit from you. I cannot close without first complimenting your very worthy agent here, Mr. Smith, one of the most efficient and worthy fellows. We wish you success in your enterprises. We are an Old Subscriber.

Burning and Hanging Slaves-A Fearful Story. NATCHEZ, June 22, 1845.

for the purpose of relating one of the most disgraceful outrages that ever stained humanity. The facts are briefly these: Old Col. Ross died here several years ago, leaving a great many slaves to be set free soon as they saved enough money to carry them to Liberia. His wishes were partially executed, but some of the negroes at first refused to go, and did some of the negroes at first refused to go, and did not; since that, however, they have changed their mind and are now desirous of being free. In this state of things the house of Ross's nephew, who wants to retain the slaves, took fire about two weeks ago in the midst of a violent storm, and although I am convinced it was caused by the lightning, it was given out that the negroes did it. In consequence, one of the negroes was whipped to such a degree, that, under the torture, he confessed the crime, implicating two others in the guilt. The two unfortunate negroes were immediately caught, and without a word heard in defence, they were hung like dogs; the other, who had confessed the crime, was thrown into a log house and burned!—Yes, burned. These are facts, Sir, although too fearful for ready

These are facts, Sir, although too fearful for ready belief; but I am ready to substantiate them under my signature, regardless of those who are doing their best here to keep it secret as the grave, as they do not, they say, desire it to be known in the North.

The Whitewater Valley Canal is completed from Cincinnati to Connersville, Indiana, a distance of seventy miles, and six or eight more miles of the canal will be completed within three or four weeks. "This," remarks the editor of the Cincinnati Gazette, "will convey the navigation up to the feeder-dam beyond Connersville, and leave some seven miles to be done to finish the line to Cambridge. Very soon, therefore, we shall have daily communication with the heart of one of the richest valleys in Indiana or the west."

There is to be a great Convention at Memphis, Tennessee, of the Western States, to be held to-day, to take into consideration various matters of interest to the West. The subject of the Lake defences, in connexion with a ship canal to connect the Mississippi with Lake Michigan, will come up on that occasion. The Oregon controversy will be another topic. It is thought that the doings of the Memphis Convention may have an important bearing upon our relations with England.

Mrs. Mowatt—This lady has confirmed, by her performances in Philadelphia, the favorable vertict of the New York critics, and now stands before the public as one of the few great actresses of the day. She played five different characters at the Walnut street theatre, and in all her success was extraordinary. It is a matter of dispute with the critics whether tragedy or comedy is her forte. Her Pauline was a most beautiful personations but she made an equility great hit in Juliana, in the Honey Moon. A friend, who invitressed her performance of Lucy Assiton, in the Br de of Lammermoor, says that he never saw a deeper effect produced upon an audience than by her consummately graceful and pathetic acting in the last scene. He describes her as quite equal to the best English actresses who have visited this country.—Bosion Transcript.

The Oppender Caught.—The Alton Telegraph of the 21st says:—One day last week, the iron on a portion of the railroad between Jacksonville and Meredosia, was stripped from the rails and stolen. The Governor immediately issued handbills, offering a reward of two hundred and fifty dollars for the detection and conviction of the perpetrators. Mr. Hunt, the jailor at Jacksonville, had, however, previously started in pursuit of the thief. He succeeded in finding him beyond Carthage, in Hancock county, with his wagon standing before his door loaded with a portion of the iron that had been stripped from the railroad. The person implicated is Charles thrisman, a Mormon Elder, and formerly a resident of Morgan county. He had taken altogether three loads, weighing in the aggregate about 4,500 pounds. Chrisman sold it to a blacksmith in his neighborhood, at four cents per pound. He was brought back to Morgan county, where the theft was committed and safely lodged in jail for trial, which it was expected would take place some time this week. Chrisman is of a respectable family, and is said to be a man of property. He deserves to be punished to the very extent of the law.

AWTUL MURDER AND SUICIDE.—An awful murder and suicide took place a few days since, some lifteers miles east of this place a few days since. A German by the name of Nep, occasionally in the habit of drinking to excess, had been drinking in company with another individual, and both left the groggery in Palestline for the German's home. When there some difficulty arose, and the individual had his ribs broken by the German. Alter getting sober, he threatened the German with a suit, telling him he would take away his property and farm, the latter having cost him $1700 in cash.—This caused the German to immediately transfer his property to his child. This operated on his wife, and she afterwards twitted her husband with being a beggar.—He afterwards twitted her husband with being a beggar.—He afterwards procured a barrel of whiskey, which he brought home. While he was asleep the wife let the contents of the barrel run out; and when he awoke and found what she had done, he immediately attacked her, beat and killed her, and afterwards severed her head from her body with an axe. He then deliberately stood up before a looking glass, and cut his own throat.—Indianopolis Sentinel, June 26. AWFUL MURDER AND SUICIDE -An awful murder

IMPORTANT CONTEMPLATED IMPROVEMENT.—We are glad to hear that Gen. Ledyard, of Cazenovia, has made a purchase of all the water power, with the lands adjoining, on Limestone Creek, between the villages of Fayetteville and Manlius, with the view of taking the water from the creek near the latter village and conveying it to the former, so as to secure the whole extent of the fall between the two places, amounting altogether to 116 feet. Bishop's Brook is also to be diverted from its present channel and taken to Fayetteville upon a still higher level. Fayetteville is a pleasant, thriving village, a short distance south of the Eric Canal, and three miles from the railroad, in the midst of as fine an agricultural section as almost any in the State. It is also in the immediate vicinity of inexhaustible beds of Gypsum and Water Lime. Nothing was wrinting but the improvement of its water power, to make it a flourishing town.—Western State Journal.

Another Jersey Blue Gone.—Jacob Homer, Senr., died on the 28th ult. at his residence in Salem, (West Jersey) aged 85 years. He was engaged at different periods throughout the revolutionary war, in driving baggage wagons, and conveying provisions to the American army, particularly while encamped in the American army, particularly while encamped in East Jersey. It is said of him that he crossed the Delaware River with Washington the night previous to the celebrated battle at Trenton. At that period he was about 16 years of age. He afterwards enlisted and marched to Western Pen nsylvania to assist in quelling the celebrabrated "Whiskey War."

We notice also the death of Tristram Richards, who was a soldier at West Point when Arnold's treason was discovered.—Newark Advertiser.

The initials J. L. were found on his left arm, with an anchor, marked with India ink, and on the right arm an anchor and two stars; the pistols bore the initials of the maker's name, E. L. G.

The stock market was very flat to-day, and prices ere very feverish. Norwich and Worcester went up | per cent; Reading Railroad ‡; Canton ‡; Morris Canal ‡; Farmers' Loan ‡; Long Island fell off ‡; Indiana ‡; Vickshurg ‡; Stonington closed firm at yesterday's prices. The transactions were limited.

The Acadia arrived at Boston on Wednesday evening, with advices from Liverpool to the 19th ult. It appears by the accounts that there had been no change in the prices paid for cotton, although large sales had been effected. The prospects for good crops were more favorable, and the indications were that the yield would be a good one. There was a full average circulation of Bank of England notes, and yet bankers were enabled to obon of his guilt or innocence of the fearful private banks of the kingdom.

The competition that exists on Long Island Sound, and upon the various railroads terminating on the Sound, in relation to the transportation of passengers between this city and Boston, is much greater this season than in any previous one, and from present appearances, we should judge it likely to be continued through the summer months, at least. The outside boats to Providence contract to take passengers through from this city to Bos-ton for one dollar and fifty cents. This amount they have to pay for carrying them over the Providence and Boston Railroad, leaving the boats no remuneration but what profit they may make on the supper furnished the passengers on board, which cannot exceed twenty-fiv cents each. In consequence of the great reduction made in the amount usually charged for passage from this city to Boston, by this temporary steamboat line, the Long Island and the Norwich and Woreester Railroads have reduced their fare to the same level, and carry passengers through each way for one dollar and fifty cents.—The Long Island company have lately established a line of steamboats from Greenwort, the castern extravity of of steamhoats from Greenport, the eastern extremity of their road, to Newport and Providence. The opposition on the Sound, between this city and Providence, is car ried to such an extent, and the price of passage so far ried to such an extent, and the price of passage so far below a remunerating rate, that the question naturally arises, how can it be supported? The parties engaged in the running of the opposition boat, are perfectly in different about its earnings—they do not look for a single cent in return for the outlay in that quarter. The support of the opposition is purely a Wall street stock operation, and so long as it suits the interests of these brokers cornering Long Island, Norwich and Worcester, and Stonington Railroad stock, the boat will be regularly employed on the route. In the meantime, the travelling could be recommended in the city.

The stock of the Stonington Railroad Company has thus far been more seriously affected by the opposition on the Sound than any other. That road having no land on the Sound than any other. That road having no land travel of consequence, depending almost entirely upon the receipts from the through travel, its income has been sadly reduced by the attraction of passengers to other routes. It is stated that the receipts of the road have been so much reduced that the interest on the bonds of the company due on the first of August cannot be paid at maturity. We annex the latest official returns from this company, showing its condition at the end of the last facal year:

CORRECTION.

FOURTH AND SINTH WARD COURT—Mr. Editor: In the case of Courtney vs. Sykes, reported in your paper of the 3d inst, I was the defendant's counsel, and I hope your sense of justice will induce you to correct and add something to the report, so that the defendant, who is engaged in a business which, through the acts of the vicious and depraved, has of late become in bad odor, may not be misrepresented or be visited with the censure of a discerning public. The result is known—but one of the jurors informs me that af first there were four in favor of the defendant and two for the plaintiff.—On comparing notes, however, it appeared to be in, evidence, as they thought, that a runner on board the ship Virginia had mentioned the terms of the defendant's house as 6d sterling a meal, which gave a probability to the story of the plaintiff, and then decided on the testimony of defendant's witnesses—hence the verdict in favor of the plaintiff. Now the fact is, Mr. Sykes had no runner on board the ship Virginia, who eight made, nor was any person ever authorized to make, such an arrangement; on the contrary, his prices have always been uniformly 18 cents per meal for transient boarders—the prices advertised every week and painted in a conspicuous part of the house—and as the runner was not subposmaed by the plaintiff, no name mentioned, or description given of him, it is clear that the defendant could neither show that no person had taken the liberty of his reducing his charges, notens totens, or that he khad no authority. It was this circumstance that turned the case in the plaintiff a two;—a result which would not have taken plaentiff, exhibiting an authority and the plaintiff a two;—a result which would not have taken plaentiff, exhibiting an authority and the subject of the section of price, would be exhed to those of a class, which are not expected or desired, to Ablishment, he determined to resist and defend this case.
Yours, respectfully,

THE Cadets embrace the earliest opportunity on their return from the city of New York to notice the civilities there received, and make a suitable acknowledgement for kindness extended during their stay. It was not their good fortune to see many of their brethren volunteers nor their officers in a military capacity, so that their thanks must be necessarily limited in this particular. To Commissary Gen Storms, for his attention at the arsenal, and for the opportunity offered of visiting Storms, for his attention at the arsenal, and for the opportunity officed of visiting and inspecting that interesting deportor Graptain Joseph Craig and Lieutenant Alexander Engleson, for their personal exertions to render our visit acreeable—and to Captain J. L. Waugh and his Fifth company of the National Guards, for the handsome escort on our departure, we owe thanks, and most cheerfully tender them.

To his Honor Mayor Havemeyer, for the review of the 17th, in the Park, and the handsome reception by the authorities in the City Hall; to William Niblo, Eq., of Niblo's Garden, for invitations to visit that delightful garden; to Mr. John Florence, for refreshments seasonably provided by him; to Messrs, Kipp S. Brown, for the liberal offer of their Line of Omnibuses; to the proprietors of the Baths in Courland street and at the Battery, for throwing them open for our gratuitous admission; and the circumstances, gratifying attention, we tender grateful acknowledgements, and the assurance of our lasting remembrance. Butto H. Edward Lord, Eag., our gratuitude is especially due, for his unwearied and generous exertions in our behalf—Although not now attached to any military body, and therefore not particularly called upon to give up his time and delay his business on our account, yet the recollections of Anld Lang Syne would not permit him to be idle, while there was a chance for him to add to our pleasures or increase our comfort.
